THE SPIRIT OF DEMOCRACY.

Erring ones inguarded do. Time tells me that mild correction Breathed into the heart that's aching, Falls like tones of sweet affection, On the heart that's nearly breaking. Time tells me that human pride Which long has held the sway of passion Has been soothed and turned aside. Melted down by friendship's mission.

Time tells me that love's evangels Shall in holy silence go, Welcoming recording angels In commune with minds below. Time tells me that human aid Strengthens happiness and love; Then the heart in God is staid, Loving only to be loved.

Many a beauteous flower fades, Tho' we love it e'er so much; Inhumanity conveyed, Wears a void no aid can touch. So in many a throbbing breast. Anguish often lies concealed; Alone-forsaken, and oppressed, Never-never to be healed.

Scraping Apple Trees. The Cincinnati Commercial says: Every industrious working man in Enland carries a pauper on his back." In this country every laboring white man carries a nigger, besides contributing half his hard earnings to support a Jacobin Government and an aristocratic snobbery of National Bankers and shod-dy bondholders.

A Bostonian is taking a preliminary velocipedal lesson by riding a lean hog. The New Lisbon (O.,) Patriot grieves to learn "that some of our schools girls carry toilet glasses to school, and paint and powder when they should be engag-ed in their studies." A man in Greensboro, Vermont nearly
